We are happy to inform you that Centre for Naga Tribal Language Studies (CNTLS) under Nagaland University, Kohima campus, Meriema was established in 2016. It is a first and one of its kinds Centre that is focused mainly on preservation and promotion of Naga languages and Cultural Studies. The Centre has an interdisciplinary focus that also recognizes the diversity of tribal nations, communities, cultures and languages. The mission serves the following purposes:

- To implement student programs that support and nurture personal development and academic success in higher education.
- To partner with tribes in programs that meet educational, professional development, and other mutually beneficial needs.
- To facilitate appropriate design and implementation of research and other projects on issues and concerns which impact the quality of life for tribal people.
- To facilitate symposia, conferences, and forums that present issues and topics relevant to tribal peoples.

The Centre is pleased to announce the introduction of a seven-day training programme for Language Officers (LOs) and Assistant Language Officers (ALOs) from 04/06/2018 to 11/06/2018 at the University Campus. The intake capacity of the programme is 20 (twenty). Designed exclusively for the LOs and ALOs, the training programme, among others, aims to expose the participants to various aspects of language and culture exploring and discovering, with the core focus on preservation and promotion of Naga languages and cultural studies. Such initiative will contribute directly or indirectly to the language officers, in the formulation of text books on Heritage Studies, the Centre believes that the training programme can help them in enriching their working knowledge in this respect.
