

One-day Workshop

On

"Importance of IPR in Academic Institutions"

29th May, 2019

Organized by

IPR Cell
Nagaland University
Nagaland

Venue: Conference Hall, Department of Chemistry

ABOUT THE WORKSHOP

Intellectual Property Rights (IPR) is one of the most important rights of an intellectual which provides exclusive ownership of his or her own plans, ideas, discoveries or inventions. Unfortunately however, it is seen that awareness regarding the importance of IPR is still quite low among the academic community. Knowledge on Intellectual Property Rights is very pertinent, especially in this era of globalization, and it is an acknowledged fact that IPR plays an important role in the growth and development of a Nation. Therefore, it must be acknowledged that there is a need to create large public awareness about the pivotal role of IPR in a globalized knowledge-based society. With a view to creating an awareness on the significance of IPR among students, research scholars and faculty of the University and nearby academic institutions, the IPR Cell, Nagaland University is organizing a one-day workshop on "Importance of IPR in Academic Institutions"

What are intellectual property rights?

Intellectual property rights are like any other property right. They allow creators, or owners, of patents, trademarks or copyrighted works to benefit from their own work or investment in a creation. These rights are outlined in Article 27 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, which provides for the right to benefit from the protection of moral and material interests resulting from authorship of scientific, literary or artistic productions. The importance of intellectual property was first recognized in the Paris Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property (1883) and the Berne Convention for the Protection of Literary and Artistic Works (1886). Both treaties are administered by the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO).
