CONCEPT NOTE:

The faculty development programme on "Language/Linguistics, Literature, Culture" organised by the Centre for Naga Tribal Language Study, Nagaland University, aims to look at how, fundamentally, aspects of Language, Literature and Culture are interwoven and correlate to each other. Literature is the fusion of culture and language, without which there would be no society, and no coherent communication. Historical and current trends in Language, Literature and related studies such as Cultural Studies, Cultural Anthropology and Linguistics show how the landscape of humanities and social sciences is continuously getting shaped and evolving even as attempts to decolonise academia and scholarship are on-going. Taking this approach, it is hoped that this particular faculty development programme will throw light on contemporary and emerging trends in Language/Linguistics, Literature and Culture, while also revisiting established and historical concepts.

MAIN OBJECTIVES OF FDP:

- To offer learning on the foundational aspects and challenges in the above mentioned areas
- To provide a forum to exchange views, ideas & the emerging trends in the field of Language, Linguistics, Literature and Cultural Studies
- To improve faculty's ability in research (especially multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary research) and help widen perspectives
- To provide hands-on training to demonstrate fundamental concepts in Language studies and cultural theory.
